

North County Times

Business

Tuesday, July 10, 2007

Last modified Tuesday, July 10, 2007 11:22 AM PDT

Foreclosure site expands to San Diego, Riverside counties

By: BRADLEY J. FIKES -- staff writer

ForeclosurePoint.com has added San Diego and Riverside counties to its database of homes in foreclosure, the company said today.

The company gives users free access to foreclosure listings, including address, property details and estimated opening bid. It also provides assistance to real estate agents to help clients buy foreclosure properties. Short-term bridge financing is also available, from lending partners working with the company. Expanded services are available by subscription.

The Bellvue, Wa-based company was launched in March to take advantage of the growing number of houses in foreclosure.

"Given today's complex process for purchasing foreclosure properties and market inefficiencies, 99 percent of homebuyers, as well as real estate investors, are unable to participate in this market," said Chris Matty, ForeclosurePoint.com's chief marketing officer, in a press release. "We are transforming the industry with innovation, opening up the foreclosure market to a much larger pool of buyers."

Users can sign up at www.foreclosurepoint.com for the free or subscription services.